Posted by Briden - 2008/12/23 17:57

Alright Victoria you better hold on tight because I have a show that's gonna rock your world. I'm happy to announce the island debut of Stickybuds and Jpod, together known as the StickyPod Connection, playing Friday January 16th in the new year. Not only that, but a killer lineup of house/breakbeat/electro/glitch DJs are also on hand to help bring on your eargasm.

STICKYPOD CONNECTION

Kelowna-based DJs Stickybuds and Jpod (the beat chef) have formed a connection where they slice & dice genres while blowing minds and speakers alike. Jason & Tyler are crafty and suave and are addicted to dirty beats, bomb acapellas and genre-mashing combos. They have both performed individually at The Shambhala Music Festival in 2005 and in '06 a decision to link their time slots together offered a memorable 4-hour funk throw-down that solidified The StickyPod Connection as a project to pursue & perfect. Now they're on a roll with out-of-control shows all over the West. They're not afraid to push the boundaries of conventional dance music and go way beyond the technical simplicity of mixing tunes. They use their gear like musical instruments to de-construct Reggae, Hip Hop, Funk, Breaks, and DnB as they re-construct live edits & mashes using the dopest acapellas and the phattiest shoe-skool grooves. Ty & Jay are cool cats with an infectious party style who assault dance floors. They love what they do and so do their fans, so get your feet in check and be prepared to get infected by their insane energy.

Breaching the stability of BC's loudspeakers, Heidrogen is sure to yoke your mind. By intelligent set design, melodies get crafted and spliced into a well-sequenced designed disorder. With common ingredients of glitch, psy, bass, and crafty drum patterns, it is not uncommon to have to squeegee random kin off the ceiling. Movement becomes necessity.
